PRELIMINARY PLANS MADE FOR WHITE WAY

May Mean Removal of Many Poles From King Street

PLAN IS SUBMITTED

Plans For Cable With Iron Poles or Reunion at Charlottesville Pay Tribute to Great Leader.

Preliimnary plans for a "White Way," on King street, were discussed last night at a meeting of a special committee appointed some time ago for that purpose by the chamber of commerce. The meeting was held in the rooms of the chamber of commerce and called to order by Captain George H. Evans, business manager of the chamber of commerce. R. R. Robinson, representing the Western Unino Telegraph Company, appeared and explained his ideas aobut the poles on King street, Mr. Robinson told the committee that he would submit to his company two propositions regarding the poles, one of which will be to replace the present wooden poles with iron poles and have all of the company's wires on that thoroughfare in a cable. The other is to remove all of the company's wires off King street and transfer them to Cameron street.

In the event they substituted iron poles for the present ones it is stated that where there are eight or ten wooden poles now on a square on King street there probably would not be more than six.

It also would mean that should they remove their poles the Alexandria County Lighting Company and Washington-Virginia Railway Company probably would have a line or iron poles to take the place of the wooden ones now used.

After all of the plans are mapped out this committee will submit the matter to the city council for final action.

The committee in charge of the plans for the "White Way" is composed of E. C. Dunn, J. Y. Williams, J. William May, R. E. Knight, C. W. Wattles, C. H. S. Sinclair, Capt. George H. Evans, Claude W. Fletcher, Mayor J. M. Duncan, and W. C. Drury and W. E. Dunn, J. Kent White and W. Selden Washington.

MISS HOPKINS IS MARRIED AT HOME YESTERDAY

Daughter of George D. Hopkins Weds Arthur H. Saunders, of Richmond

RECEPTION FOLLOWS

After Extended Wedding Trip Through the East, Couple Will Make Their Home in Richmond.

One of the most attractive weddings in Alexandria in several years took place at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon when Miss Julia Benton Hopkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Dearborn Hopkins, became the bride of Mr. Arthur Harrison Saunders, of Richmond, Va.

While the guests assembled in the spacious drawing room of the bride's home in North Washington street, Myer Davis' orchestra played several selections, including, "Oh Promise Me," and "The Sweetest Story Ever Told."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, Mr. Hopkins entered the drawing room alone. She was charming in a derectoire gown of ivory white satin embroidered in pearls and trimmed with a cascade of rare old rose point lace. Her veil of silk tulle was arranged in coronet fashion with the coronet of rose point caught with sprays of orange blossoms and the tulle falling in rippling cascades to the end of the court train. She carried a shower bouquet of brides roses and lilies of the valley.

Attending her as maid of honor was Miss Collins Jones, who wore a frock of blue-two-tone taffeta and a picture hat of pink tulle. She carried pink Columbia roses. Dr. William B. Hopkins, of Richmond, acted as best man for Mr. Saunders.

The drawing room was beautifully decorated with banks of ferns and palms interspersed with tall standards of white chrysanthemums, the plants being arranged to form a back ground for the improvised al-

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY

From Our Correspondent

Washington, Oct. 20.—A framed oil portrait of Mrs. Sarah Jordan Jackson, wife of President Andrew Jackson's son, now adorns the White House among those of other "first ladies." The portrait was presented to President Harding this week by Mrs. Harry K. Evans, of Tennessee, regent of the Ladies' Hermitage Association. The wife of "Old Hickory's son presided over the White House as mistress during the latter years of the Jackson administration.

The report of the Clerk of the House of Representatives shows some odd expenditures from the contingent fund of that body. For instance, some of the things bought for the Congress men were:

One box party invitations, $45; one dozen hornet cards, $2.75; one manicure set, $5.40; two "From Me to You Calendars", $1.69; one puff-box, $1.50; two dozen metal egg crates, $2.55; one icy-hot thermos bottle, $4.20; two "Some One Like You" books, $1.00; one jewel case, $3.50; one baby ring, $1.00; one watch bracelet, $22.50.

Mrs. F. N. Zihlman, wife of the Representative from Maryland, is one of the most beautiful and popular matrons in the Congressional set. Mrs. Zihlman and "Uncle Joe" Cannon are especially close friends, and they frequently spend hours playing cards, of which both are very fond. "Red Dog" is their favorite game and each at times risks his or her all on the turn of a card. Neither will ask or give quarter and both play with all the earnestness and determination of professional gamblers.

At the end of a long seance one or the other will win 13 cents or thereabouts and feel that the time was well spent and the compensation ample.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, wife of the former occupant of the White House is one of the few women of the country who ever inspected the original copy of the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution of the United States and the treaty with Great Britain which ended the Revolutionary War. Shortly before she left the White House, Mrs. Wilson was invited by the then Secretary of State Colby to visit the State Department and inspect these precious documents. They are exposed to view only on rare occasions and it was the first time in the memory of the oldest attaches of the State Department that he mistress of the White House had called to see them.

Representative George M. Bowers, of West Virginia has at last secured the signature of former President Wilson in his famous autograph album. The West Virginia member has a wonderful collection of signatures of famous men and women, including those of President Grant and each succeeding occupant of the White House up to the present time. It contains the autograph of Warren G. Harding, written in March, 1919.

President Taft's entire Cabinet signed their names in the album, as did a majority of the members of McKinley's Cabinet, and the official family of President Roosevelt. The book contains the signatures of Robert Lincoln, son of President Lincoln as well as that of Alphonso Taft, father of the present Chief Justice of the United States.

Representative Andrew Jackson Montague, of Virginia, is regarded by his colleagues as one of the strongest men in the House. He has a wonderful record of achievements as a public official and each position he has filled with honor and credit, his friends say.

He is a profound student and a most forcible speaker. He seldom takes part in the rough and tumble debates in the House but when he daes take the rostrum he is listened to by friend and foe (politically speaking) with the utmost attention. The former Governor of the Old Dominion can be depended upon to say something worth while and to add a good deal of information to the subject matter under discussion in the House.

Since the testimony of General Charles G. Dawes before a Congressional Investigating Committee during which he used such expletives as "Hell and Maria," the present Director of the Budget has calmed down to a great extent. So far as known, there have been no further "outbreaks" of the kind on his part and he is going ahead with his task of reducing government expenditures as well as government pay rolls in a highly dignified and perfectly calm manner. Not that he has lost any of his "pep" and vigor since he left the army. Far from it as those under him will testify. But Washington atmosphere seems to have had a rather soothing effect upon him and he is not nearly so fiery as heretofore.

RELIGIOUS PAGEANT

Beautiful Ceremony at Christ Church Tuesday Night

Tuesday night the religious and historical pageant was given in Christ Church yard. The October weather was perfect, clear and mild and balmy without the faintest ripple of a breeze to ruffle the plumage of the angels wings or to lift even a fold of their flowing white drapery.

The setting was ideal, from the upper windows of the church streamed forth a flood of light illuminating the tops of the trees while nearer the earth gleamed the electric lights that shone like stars in the darkness, such a number of them there were that it seemed like the milky way. The platform was illuminated by electric lights from the top of the cross, and over all the full moon shone.

Long before the pageant began the people assembled but the gates were not opened until Captain Gardner with his light infantry arrived, they were detailed to keep an open space between the Parish Hall and the platform, and never was order better preserved.

Then the gates were opened and the throng of people admitted, so much emphasis had been laid on the fact that although a wonderful spectular effect was to be expected, yet its religious significance was pre-eminent, and the people entered into the spirit of the pageant. When that grand old hymn was sung—"Oh God, Our Help in Ages Past" the angles led the way across the church yard ranging themselves on either side of the cross. Then came the three voices represented by Dr. Morton, Mr. Carpenter, and Mr. Hall who took their places on the platform in the foreground. The Greek church was represented by Rev. Thomas Daniels, pastor of the Greek Orthodox Church Saints Constantine and Helen vested in a beautiful pale blue robe equivilent to the chasuble and stole of the western church he was accompanied by Mr. Ginolopolis both of whom were brought by Dr. Samuel Wallis. These three took their position near the platform, representing the church ministering to the world, the choir came next and took its position to the west of the platform.

The service then began, and gradually the nations of the world drew near irresistably attracted by the great white cross that was the central figure of the whole pageant. The parts were wonderfully well taken, the Indians, the mountaineers, the Japanese and the Chinese, the Turks, the Esquimos, Spaniards, Mexicans. Immigrants, and all the other nations were most faithfully and accurately costumed, each and all were drawn to the cross and each group knelt down before it. A squad of the Light Infantry advanced following the other groups and saluted the cross then later when the sanctus was sung they knelt with the others. As the service progressed the voices of the clergy and the familiar hymns held the audience in a quiet reverential frame of mind. the recital by Dr. Morton of this past century of missionary effort brought the story vividly again of those whose life work had been consecrated to missions, and it was a record to inspire.

The pageant closed with the clergy leading then the white robed angels, each carrying a cluster of ascension lilies, then the choir singing "All Hail the Power of Jesus, Name." with all the nations following.

It was a glorious triumphant pageant and from an artistic point of view a great success, but from a spiritual view point its success lies in its stimulating power to fight on as soldiers of the Cross and to help establish the kingdom of God throughout the world. The heroes of the past 100 years are calling in no uncertain tone "take up our quarrel with the foe, to you from falling hand we throw the torch, be yours the task to raise it high." Shall we fail them?

STEALS OVERCOAT

In the police court today a colored man giving the name of Joe McMillan charged with the larceny of an overcoat from Walter Alexander, colored, was fined $25. The accused also was charged with taking a Southern Railway pass of Alexander which was made out of Lynchburg and using it. McMillan was captured by Southern Railway officials at Monroe, Va. He admitted the theft of the overcoat valued by the owner at $55, but denied stealing the pass, claiming it was sold to him for $1 by Alexander. Alexander emphatically denied this accusation and the case against McMillan for the larceny of the pass will be heard tomorrow morning before Justice W. S. Snow.

Confederate Veterans of Virginia in Removal of all From King to Cameron Street

Charlottesville, Oct. 20.—This, the big day in the great Confederate Reunion, began with business and ended with festivities. At 10 o'clock this morning the Grand Camp, U. C. V., assembled at the Jefferson Theater in its most important business meeting and received reports from the committees on credentials, resolutions, history, inspector general and quarter master general. At the same hour Virginia Division, Sons of Confederate Veterans, met in the Masonic Temple in their first business session.

With these meetings over, general attention was turned to the two greatest events of the reunion—the parade and the unveiling of Charles Keck's equestrian statue of General "Stonewall" Jackson.

The parade column, 5,000 strong, was put in motion at 1 p. m., with Colonel Thomas S. Keller in command. It was composed of the following units. V. M. I. MYSTERY MAN AT HOSPITAL FOR SIX DAYS

Believed He Is a Victim of Wood Alcohol Poisoning

HAS LOST SIGHT

Once Since Sunday Muttered "Joe Donnelly"—Initials "J. J. D." Tatooed on Arm—Picked up by Police Last Saturday.

After being unconscious for the past six days an unidentified white man about 35 years old, is still as much a mystery to the attaches of the Alexandria Hospital as he was when brought in last Sunday afternoon. Only once since being in that institution did he furnish any clew to his identity and that was when he muttered the name "Joe Donnelly." The physicians and hospital attaches think the stranger may be a victim of wood alcohol poisoning.

Tatooed on his right arm are the initials "J. J. D." Inasmuch as he uttered the name "Joe Donnelly" the hospitals attendants think that possibly this may be his name. There were no papers in his pockets or marks of identification other than the initials tatooed on his arm. The only thing found in his pocket was a return trip to Washington. The man is about 35 years old and weighs about 150 pounds and is five feet eight inches in heigth. Two joints of the right index finger are missing.

According to the police he was picked up near the Union railway station Saturday afternoon and brought to police headquarters. The police say that he fell on the street. He being aroused from his stupor Sunday afternoon he was taken to the Alexandria Hospital and has been under the care of Dr. George T. Klipstein. According to the hospital attaches his eyesight is gone although hope is held out by them for his recovery.

All efforts to learn where he hails from thus far have been unavailing.

Gregg, principal of Hampton Institute, in a recent Sunday-evening address, in which he outlined the so-called "open-door meeting" of the Commission.

STILL HOPE TO AVERT STRIKE BY PARLEYS

Conference Between Labor Board and "Big Five" May Solve Difficulties

MINOR UNIONS OPPOSE

Eleven Shop Crafts Are Against Strike and Support Board, It is Said.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—Preparation for the various moves through which it is hoped the threatened rail strike will be averted were completed today and tomorrow the peace efforts will be in full swing.

Heads of the unions and of the carriers were silently alert last night with—figuratively speaking—one eye on the conferences tomorrow between the "Big Five" rail union leaders and the Railroad Labor Board and the other on meetings of officials of 11 unions which have not yet joined the conductors, enginemen, trainmen, firemen and switchmen in a strike order, for both sides were agreed that out of these conferences would come the final decision as to whether a general walk out of rail employes would materialize.

In the conference with the Labor Board rested the possibility of the "Big Five" being persuaded to cancel their order for a walkout, while in the meetings of the 11 unions, which actually started yesterday, was to be decided whether these organizations, holding the balance of man power through numbering three fourths of the nearly 2,000,000 rail workers in their membership, would join the "Big Five" if they walked out October 30, as planned.

TODAY'S THOUGHT Time has laid his hand upon my heart gently, not smiting it, but as a harper lays his open palm upon his harp, to deaden its vibrations.
Longfellow.

OUR WHITE WAY

We note with pleasure the recent activities of the White Way Committee of the Chamber of Commerce. That this will be a powerful magnet to draw visitors from the surrounding territory; that it will also attract Alexandria's population to the city's Broadway; and that it will add immeasurably to the metropolitan air of the town—there can be no question whatever. Nothing is deader than a businiess street without illumination after business hours. A succession of dark streets is enough to spread an epidemic of the blues throughout the population; while, on the contrary, nothing conspires so much to impart an air of cheerfulness and optimism as brilliantly lighted store-windows, incandescent highways and byways, the hum and sibilance of hundreds of human voices, and the patter of countless human feet on the pavement.

By all means, gentlemen of the committee, let us have the White Way. Let our merchants and our movie men be assured that a merry throng is a buying throng. That pleasure-seekers at night are generally money-spenders. That the wish to spend more creates the will to earn more, and thus the circle is complete.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

The news columns of the Gazette yesterday were filled with news of good omen. We write today of the near prospects of the White Way. We touch with equal pleasure on the sadly-needed improvement of the Leesburg Turnpike, which will give us a most excellent thoroughfare from Alexandria to the thriving town of Leesburg.

We know of many good things that are in process of realization owing to the splendid activities of our Chamber of Commerce. We cannot expatiate on them now, since negotiations must of necessity often be conducted — we will not say with secrecy, but rather, silently. Noise is always an obstructor of accomplishment. But the Chamber of Commerce, embodying as it does, the brains of our city, is at work ceaselessly and effectively. All praise to those public-spirited men who give of their time and their labors so generously that their fellow-citizens may profit thereby. Let us who reap the benefits they sow, at least let them know of our appreciation.

Movies In The Salon

The motion pictures in the process of evolution have undergone many vicissitudes. Sometimes they are brought into discredit by those who act for them. Sometimes the producers are guilty of pandering to a low order of taste. But there are producers and actors determined to raise the level of the art to the plane on which it deserves to be put, and they are summoning to their aid every resource that applied science has to offer. The "movies," however, gradually are effacing the stigma attached to them by unscrupulous promoters who have had the most sordid and cynical ideas of public taste.

Patrons and participants are encouraged by such recognition of the artistic significance of the photoplay as is accorded in the autumn salon this year in Paris. That exhibition does not hesitate to admit to walls the latest shrieking excrescences of the cubists and post-futurists; and its administration would not have to go far to find moving pictures more acceptable to normal vision than the bizarre assortment of erratic lines, blobs of violent color and geometry run amuck amid zigzags, that now passes for an exhibition of art works. But art critics and connoisseurs will attend the showing. Bringing the films into the salon will expose the cinema not simply to the surveillance of the poseurs and flaneurs of the studios, but to the helpful constructive suggestion of those who know a picture from a smear of paint and are acquainted with sound principles of harmonious design.

The cinema is in need of inspiration and direction from those who know and understand, and on the firing line of genuine critical examination it will receive valuable enlightenment and assistance.—Public Ledger, Philadelphia, Pa., October 12, 1921.

DUST DISEASES

Washington, D. C., Oct. 20.—That dusts of various types are intensely harmful to mankind, occasioning in some industries terible explosions that produce great loss of life and property, and in other trades standing responsible for a highly increased death rate from lung diseases, is emphasized by investigations being conducted by the United States Bureau of Mines. The fact that coal dust has tremendous explosive powers, once scoffed at by the veteran miner, is now demonstrated frequently by the bureau in its coal mine at Experiment Pa., near Pittsburggh. Pulverized coal, blown to the furnace through compressed air lines, is an ideal fuel in certain industries, but the bureau points out that clouds of coal dust released from such pipes are as dangerous as a body of unconfined natural gas when liberated in close proximity to open flames or red hot metal A number of severe explosions have occurred in industrial plants using powdered coal as fuel, and it is necessary that care be used in the installation and operation of such plants.

Aluminum dust has also been found to be quite explosive, and several disastrous explosions of this dust have occurred in manufcturing establishments. The dusts of various grains have been found by the Department of Agriculture to be responsible for a number of severe explosions in flour mills and grain elevators. Hard rubber dust is also declared to be explosible.

The dust of rock containing free silicia, found in some metal mines in the West, settling in the lungs of the miners' consumption. The Bureau of Mines found in an investigation of conditions in the Butte, Montana, copper mining district, that the tubercular death rate of Butte miners was nearly 13 times as great as that of residents of the State of Michigan. Pulmonary disease due to rock dust, among the miners of the Joplin, Mo., lead and zinc district, affects probably as high as 30 per cent of the miners employed in certain classes of mines. Remedial measures are being found by the introduction of better ventilation, and through the use of water in drilling and in the ore piles to prevent formation of a dust cloud in the air.

The Bureau of Mines in an investigation of conditions among approximately 90 plants engaged in the production of granite at Bare, Vt., found that the partisans and laborers were to some extent subject to a peculiar pulmonary disease known as stone cutters' consumption or granite pneumonaconiosis, caused by inhalation of particles of granite dust no more than 25000 part of an inch in diameter.

Not all dusts are the enemies of mankind, however. The bureau is encouraging the use in coal mines of barriers of certain rock dusts which, when jarred by the explosion of coal dust, scatter and act as a screen for the stoppage of the exploding coal dust. The dust waste from slate quarries, amounting to about 90 per cent of the netire material mined, has been found by the bureau to be peculiarly adpted to use as a filler in the making of asphalt road surfaces.

Home Beautiful

By DOROTHY ETHEL WALSH.

"Should a color scheme planned for a bedroom be different from one planned for a living room?" writes a correspondent, and because the question brings up an important point in decoration I am going to make it the subject matter of this article.

The study of the psychology of color is an interesting one. Certain colors seem to have certain uses. Do not take this statement as meaning that the old fashioned theory of having a green living room (dark green, mind you), red dining room and one blue and one pink bedroom should be put into practice. We know that certain colors have more dignity than others, therefore it is wise to place those colors in the rooms used for dignified purposes, but bright hues no longer are relegated to bedrooms; they have acquired a recent habit of spilling over into all parts of the house.

So where all colors are advocated for all rooms it is in the quality of these different shades that we find the real purpose for which they are best suited.

Take the universally used shade of pink, for instance. It is associated in our minds with bedrooms, negligees, &c. That is as it should be. But take a deep rose, which is the same color but having more strength, and when it is used in the more formal parts of the house it is charming.

Another danger in the practice of this theory is that it tends to encourage the idea that only light shades should be used in the bedroom. My articles in this column should guard against my readers thinking I advocate such a condition. All colors of full strength may be safely used for boudoir decorations (not all at once of course), but there are certain hues which may be used in light shades, while in the living room these neutral tints are not as satisfying as those of fuller strength.

Neutral shades of those colors which are not so paramountly for bedrooms may be used. It is not always necessary to use brilliant hues, but use the same discretion in choosing colors for your home that you would use in choosing your wardrobe. For example, you will not choose a light blue shopping gown for midwinter. Do you see my point?

Hundreds of thousands are economizing on coal

By using Perfection Oil Heaters

The cost of Aladdin Security Oil, the finest kerosene you can buy, is but a trifle more than half what it was a year ago.

And with a Perfection there is absolutely no waste of fuel, no ashes, no bother. Comfort-point heat in an instant, just where you want it—with the Perfection.

Rushing your coal heater to make one or two rooms warm or to take "the chill" out of a hallway—that's what eats up the coal. You can get the same results in a few minutes by using Perfection Oil Heaters. They burn for about ten hours on one gallon of oil.

Moreover, the Perfection will go in those comfortable reading corners where it is hard to drive the heat from your furnace; in that favorite bay-window for instance.

It is easy to care for the Perfection, so simple is its smokeless wick adjustment. It is light, attractive, and built for many years of service. Blue or black, with or without nickeled trimmings.

Sold by most hardware, house-furnishing and department stores. Look at one today.

VALUABLE INVENTION

A machine for the moulding from the clay in its crude state has lately been invented by a gentleman of this city, which promises to be of great utility to the ingenious inventor and the public generally. From the calculation of judges skilled in machinary, it is supposed to be capable of completing between 30 and 40,000 bricks in one day; requiring no more hands to work it than what the common method takes to make 5,000 in the same time. From a survey of the machine and its importance, it may be called the most valuable improvement discovered for many years.

Important Communication from Postmarter Smith

Alexandria, Va., Oct. 19, 1921

Editor, Alexandria Gazette, City:
My dear sir:

Beleving you will be willing to help in the campaign to have all patrons of this office have their houses properly numbered and equiped with private mail receptacles or slot cut in the door, may I request that you publish the following;

If expeditious and efficient city delivery is to be accorded is is essential that all buildings to which mail is delivered be properly numbered and equiped with a private mail receptacle.

Without house numbers carriers are delayed in serving the routes and errors in delivedy unavoidably occur, especially when substitutes are on duty.

This condition, coupled with the lack of mail receptacles, inevitably impairs effecieny and delays delivery, with a resultant public inconvenience and loss.

To correct this evil it has been decided to conduct a nation-wide campaign with a view of having every building properly numbered and equip ped with a suitable receptacle or opening in the door.

House numbers enable carriers to locate promptly buildings to which mail is addressed and avoid errors and delay in delivery.

Mail receptacles insure the prompt and safe delivery of mail in the absence of the occupants;

Avoid delay of mail through return to office because of absence of occupants or delay in answering carrier's ring; obviate the necessity of patrons responding to the bell at inconvenient moments; expedite the service generally and permit more deliveries, specially to patrons residing near the end of a route.

The practice of placing mail in vestibules, under doors, on window sills, etc., where it is exposed to theft and the element, is hazardous and frequently results in the loss of highly valuable or important mail.

All business and civic organizations are urged to extend their hearty cooperation by placing the matter before their members, carrying articles in their official journals, etc.

I wish to call attention also to the "Mail Early" campaign. Do not wait until the close of your business to deposit the mail in the post office or street letter box.

Mail it whenever it is ready for mailing.

When it is mailed early it reaches its destination earlier, thus saving the rush on the postal employees at night.

Most errors are made in rushing to get a large quantity of mail worked up in time for dispatch on a certain train.

I trust that all patrons of the office will co-operate with us in this highly important and progressive movement.

Respectfully
Wm. W. SMITH,
Postmaster.

EPISCOPAL DIOCESE OF VIRGINIA

Plans are going forward rapidly for the success of the Nation-Wide Campaign of the Episcopal Church, which is now beginning its third section and meetings are being held in all parts of the Diocese of Virginia under the general direction of the Rev. G. M. Brydon, Secretary of the Diocese. Next Wednesday there will be an enthusiastic mass meeting of Episcopalians of Albemarle County at Greenwood and the following day a similar meeting is to be held at Misison Home, in Greene county.

Mr. Brydon goes to Gordonsville on Tuesday to present the program of the campaign to church people of that locality and recently the Rev. W. D. Smith D. D., rector of St. Mark's Church, Richmond, and a member of the executive committee, received a hearty welcome at Alexandria. The work in the latter place is well under way, for both men and women are busily engaged in holding metings for study and prayer. Although the campaign is far from being merely a financial proposition, the money raised through this means has done much for the church here in Virginia.

In many instances churches have been renovated and parish houses built or made more habitable, in one case, at least, the hall was enlarged by the addition of two rooms and the deepening of the old platform into a stage. The rooms serve as dressing rooms for entertainments and at other times are used for conferences and for Sunday School class rooms. The building has been wired and painted and folding chairs have been installed, and the rector declares the place has been transformed from a barn-like structure into a comfortable community house. The work has been done under the direction of the vestry from campaign funds.

IMPORTANT TO VOTE

Richmond, Va., Oct. 20.—With very indication from every section of the state presaging a sweeping Democratic victory, caution is nevertheless the watchword among party leaders. The rank and file of Democratic voters are being urged to allow nothing to prevent them from casting their ballots in the state election. The importance of this action cannot be overestimated. A rebuke must be administered to the rising ambitions of the Republican party in the south.

In the days of Nelson, "England expected every man to do his duty."

In the days which are now upon us, "Virginia expects every Democrat to cast his vote."

Virginia does not call alone to her sons, but her voice is lifted also to her daughters. She desires to see the entrie Democratic population within her confines on November 8th march to the ballot box, leaving plow and theatre behind them, setting aside matters of personal and private interest, dedicating and consecrating enough time on the day of election to register their will at the polls.

The Democratic party next month will not be engaged in a "family Quarrel," it will not be concerned with matters of domestic, party or private policy. It will be in the face of the enemy. At such a time it is proper that the entire Democratic strength of the state rally to the colors. The party is no longer being confronted with a theory but with a condition. The party has never feared to meet an issue, and while victory is assured, the majority should ch made impressive. Every Democratic vote in Virginia should be registered.

Fo the third of a century the Democrats have dominated the political situation in the state. They have nominated candidates in convention and had their party fights in primary, after which their nominees were swept into office by acclamation. Through long years of custom the voters have been led to believe that the primary "told the story." That there was really no necessity in inconveniencing themselves to vote in the general election. That there was no occasion to vote when their party nominee was running without opposition, or opposition which was, at the best, but nominal.

This has created a dangerous apathy duringg general elections But these conditions will not obtain in November and the danger of this apathy must be removed.

On November 8th let the Democratic lines advance to the precincts; let the battle of the ballots begin with sunrise, and let the order to ceasc firing be given only at sunset. Then, when the day ih closed, the Republicans cause will have gone down in such utter route that nothing will be left out of the disaster except bitter memories. The more bitter the recollections the safer will be the state.

Virginia expects every Democrat to vote on November 8th.

QUAIL PLENTIFUL THIS YEAR

The bobwhite is plentiful this year. Two successive mild winters and three good breeding seasons have multiplied bobwhite coveys by the thousand, according to reports to the Biological Survey, United States Department of Agriculture. In Virginia, Maryland, North Carolina, Illinois and Indiana there has not been such a nbundance of quail in many years, the department is advised. In a recent trip through northern and northwestern Indiana, the bobwhite was seen in greater numbers than ever before, and wardens in many other States in which there is no open season on quail report that the bobwhite is abundant in their localities, notably in Ohio, Kansas, Iowa and Nebraska.

But such, alas! was not the case. For finally she halted before the counter she was seking—the underwear counter. And this is the conversation that ensued:

You Need Real Gasoline on Hills

WHERE low-grade gasoline is used, a motor functions unevenly, often discharging large quantities of the fuel, unburnt, into the muffler. This means loss of power and great wastage of fuel energy. It also means crank case dilution and consequent loss of lubricating oil.

"Standard" Motor Gasoline burns clean in the cylinders. It is transformed into quick, dependable power with the minimum of waste and carbon formation. Especially when hill climbing, the difference between high-grade and low-grade gasoline is felt by the man at the wheel.

If you have been depending on any haphazard grade of gasoline offered you have not yet learned the full capabilities of your motor. Give "Standard" Motor Gasoline a fair trial and you will be surprised at the results.

Next time you need gasoline, fill up at the familiar "S.O." sign. Keep on with "Standard" Motor Gasoline until your motor is running uniformly on this high-grade fuel. Then try out the car on hills with which you are familiar. Make this test and you will know you are getting more power.

You can buy "Standard" Motor Gasoline anywhere you motor. You might as well have the best, for it costs no more. If your car's cylinders are dirty have the carbon removed, fill the crankcase with fresh Polarine, and know how good a car can be.

MOTHER, QUICK! GIVE CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP FOR CHILD'S BOWELS

Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup." If the little tongue is coated, or if your child is listless, cross, feverish, full of cold, or has colic, a teaspoonful will never fail to open the bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the constipation poison, sour bile and waste from the tender, little bowels and gives you a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on the bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.

Weak Blood Is A Real Barrier

Growing Children Often Need Gude's Pepto-Mangan

Some children grow too quickly—it saps their strength. They lapse into careless, desultory habits or develop a shrinking attitude. Their faces look pinched.

The blood becomes overtaxed by too rapid growth; and poisons from the system take the place of strength-giving red corpuscles in the blood. Red corpuscles are those little red particles that swim in the blood and give it its color. Gradually that choild loses interest in its play.

Poor blood needs the building that the iron in Gude's Pepto-Mangan gives to weakened blood. Gude's Pepto Mangan enriches the blood by increasing the number of red corpuscles, and restores the blood by driving out the poisons. When the revived blood gets to work, the appetite becomes what a growing child's should be. Your druggist has Gude's Pepto--Mangan in liquid or tablet form. The name "Gude's Pepto-Mangan" is on every package. Adv.

How to Be Healthy

The Crusade of the Double-Barred Cross
Practical Talks on Disease Prevention

Prepared by the
VIRGINIA TUBERCULOSIS ASSOCIATION

(Practically every adult person is infected with tuberculosis. This infection need not be a source of danger. To keep the latent infection from becoming disease, bodily resistance must be kept at its best. This series of articles shows you how to keep healthy.)

WHY A PERIODIC HEALTH EXAMINATION?

By DR. EUGENE L. FISK

TO THE man who asks, "Why is it important that I have my body examined once a year?" we answer, "Why is it important that cows be inspected; or meat be inspected; or the city's water supply be tested?"

Nowadays we take it as a matter of course that mankind should be protected from disease by inspecting his food and drink. How silly then, to leave the man himself uninspected!

Unfortunately there are many channels through which disease can reach us in spite of up-to-date sanitary precautions. Sometimes the focus of disease has been established many years ago and only lights up when the body is overworked, badly fed, or abused in some way.

From the standpoint of tuberculosis alone it is worth while to have periodic health examinations to detect the early signs of such trouble. One hundred and fifty thousand people die annually from this disease in the United States. The tremendous preventable death loss, however, from other chronic organic diseases is an even greater reason why periodic inspection of the human body is a fundamental, common sense measure.

Here are a few of the often unsuspected troubles that such an examination may disclose:

Defective vision; defective ears, infected head cavities (teeth, tonsils, sinuses); weak foot; flat foot; chronic appendicitis; latent constipation; tuberculosis; heart affections; high blood pressure, low blood pressure; arterial changes; ductless gland changes; anemia; kidney changes; nervous and mental disturbances. All of these conditions and often many of them combined have been found in people supposing themselves to be in average condition. Even the individual who shows slight if any actual impairment of importance has possibilities of development which are brought out by such a survey. Many people are found to be doing a lot of things that will lead them unwittingly into trouble.

Only custom and tradition stand in the way of making the thorough periodic overhauling of the body and the life of the average citizen just as routine a measure as the analysis of the financial condition of a business concern.

Close to 200,000 people have been examined by the Life Extension Institute and practically all were in need of some counsel or guidance with regard to their physical condition or manner of living and more than half were in need of actual medical attention.

WITH THE WISHING FAIRY

by CORINNE

About One of the Four Brownies at the End-of-the-Sea.

A KING-CRAB

NOT so very long ago, Stella, dear, you told us, or, rather, you began telling us about your cousin Pearl, the Fairy at the End-of-the-Sea," said Snookums, who is the Wishing Fairy's favorite Brownie. "I'd love it if you would tell us more, for we are simply crazy to know more of her."

"Well," began Stella, "I think I told you that instead of having to take care of her she has a Sword-fish, a Portuguese Man-of-War, a Horseshoe Crab and a dear little green Lobster. They are her Brownies."

"Water Brownies?" suggested Pimzie with a grin spreading over his funny little face.

"Yes."

"Well," he returned, "I know what a Lobster is, but what in the world is a Portuguese Man-of-War?"

"And what is a Horseshoe Crab?" Snookums asked.

"And just what is a Swordfish?" questioned Lorykins.

"You are asking a lot of questions," Stella answered, with a smile, "and I must answer them one at a time. To begin with, I'll tell you about a Horseshoe Crab, which, by the way, is often called a King Crab."

"What does it look like?" Snookums asked curiously.

"Perhaps," Stella said, waving a blade of grass that in some magic way was turning in her hands into a fairy pencil, "perhaps it would be a good idea if I drew a picture of one. Then," she added, "you would know just what they are like."

The four Brownies crowded around her as she began drawing.

"Here," she said, "is the top of a Horseshoe Crab, and here," she added, as she drew another picture alongside of the first, "is the underneath view of it."

"Tell us about it," said Pimzie; "how it lives and what it eats."

"It burrows beneath the sand, below low water mark. In May, June and July Mrs. Horseshoe Crab comes up the shore to the high water mark to lay her eggs," Stella told the Brownies. "She is much larger than Mr. Horseshoe Crab; so what do you suppose she does?"

"Can't imagine!" exclaimed Pimzie. "What?"

"She carries him with her. He perches atop her broad back and holds on with his nippers so as not to fall off; for Mr. Crab is very lazy and he would much rather ride along the beach on Mrs. Crab's shell than have to walk—even though he has so many feet. And he knows that he may not stay down near the water because his wife is always determined that he go along with her, and he has to mind, as she is so much bigger and stronger. These Crabs as they grow outgrow their shells, so they moult."

"What do you mean by that, Stella, dear?" asked Snookums.

"I mean that they walk right out of their old shells and grow new ones that are large enough. Mrs. Horseshoe Crab's eggs hatch in August, and then the beach is covered with baby Crabs, but only for a short while. They disappear under the sand and water until they have become quite large."

"Are Horseshoe Crabs related to the plain Crabs that we know?" asked Kinkajou; "I mean the ones that Humans eat."

"That is a rather hard question to answer," said Stella, "because their nearest relations are all dead. Their nearest living relations are the Scorpions and Spiders."

"I must also tell you," she added, "that though Humans don't eat them, their meat is very delicious."

"How do they breathe?"

"From their gills. I have marked these 'G' on the picture. 'A' is the stomach. 'M' is the mouth. They walk with their front legs and swim with their hind legs."

"I'm glad that I am not a Horseshoe Crab!" exclaimed Pimzie. "I'm afraid I'd get all mixed up."

marchers passed McGuffey school, the little ones delighted the eyes of the old soldiers as they stood at attention on the front lawn in the form of the Stars and Bars.

The parade, after threading the streets of the city for more than an hour, reached the Jackson monument and the great crowd that composed it, augmented by thousands of others, surrounded the notable bronze and filled the adjacent streets.

Judge R. T. W. Duke, Jr., son of Colonel R. T. W. Duke, for whom the local camp of Sons of Confederate Veterans was named, presided and made a brief address. Dr. George L. Petrie, venerable chaplain of John Bowie Strange Camp, offered prayer, after which Prof. Richard Heath Dabney, head of the school of history in the University of Virginia, introduced Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississipi.

A great tribute to the Confederate leader was paid by Senator Harrison. "Among all the distinguished Virginians who have added luster to America, none impressed the country more with the greatness of his military genius and no name enthuses Virginians more than that of Stonewall Jackson," the Mississippi senator declared.

ica, and E. P. Curtis, vice president of the Order of Railway Conductors, left Cleveland last night for Chicago to meet with the Labor Board, at the latter's request. L. E. Sheppard, president of the conductors' organization, also is expected to be here tomorrow.

While this conference was looked on as the most important of the peace moves, railroad men last night professed to see signs of a peaceful settlement of the difficulties in the attitude of B. M. Jewell, head of the 476,000 members of the six railway shop craft organizations, and of J. C. Smock, vice president of the maintenance of way union, which numbers 300,000 men.

"I cannot speak for my entire organization now, but personally I will say that we do not want a strike, that we would never strike on the wage question unless forced to, and that we will not go into any walkout with the brotherhoods unless we have definite promises of co-operation which so far have not been forthcoming from them," said Mr. Smock.

Mr. Jewell repeated his statements that he was opposed to the strike.

The Labor Board will go into conference with assurance of full support from every interested governmental department, its members said last night following an executive session at which they went over the case. One member intimated that he beleived the board had found a legal method of enforcing its rulings. Heretofore the board has maintained that it had no power to carry out its decisions and unions and railroads each have charged the other with violating the board's rulings.

THIN, FLAT HAIR
GROWS LONG, THICK AND ABUNDANT

"Danderine" costs only 35 cents a bottle. One application ends all dandruff, stops itching and falling hair, and in a few moments, you have doubled the beauty of your hair. It will appear a mass, so soft, lustrous, and easy to do up. But what will please you most will be after a few weeks use, w you see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really hair growing all ov the scalp. "Danderine" is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation, It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. COULD NOT KEEP HOUSE
Without Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Says Mrs. Pitts of Newburgh

Newburgh, N. Y.—"My trouble was a weak back and I could not walk two blocks without being tired out. I read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in a newspaper and decided to give it a trial. Now I can do my own work and walk with ease. I always keep the Vegetable Compound in the house. It certainly is my best friend and I could not keep house without it. I have recommended it to many and always shall. You may use this letter if you wish."—Mrs. EDWARD PITTS, 2 High St., Newburgh, N. Y.

It has been said that "backache is an invention of the Evil One to try women's souls," but even so, it is more often a symptom of a female trouble which sooner or later declares itself. Day after day it drags a woman down and night after night prevents restful sleep. Such woman should follow Mrs. Pitt's advice and try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and regain health. Letters about your health will be given careful attention and held in strict confidence if you write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. Their experience of over 40 years is at your service.
